

Support Northwestern University Cycling

Completely student-run, the Northwestern University Cycling Club contains both undergraduate and graduate students. Our members range from recreational riders to Category A- Racers. Those members who choose to race during the college road season compete regularly against teams from the Big-Ten universities and other colleges of the Midwest Collegiate Cycling Conference (MWCCC). In the 2010-2011, Northwestern Cycling Club experienced growth to a new high of 40 dues-paying members.

Our commitment to racing as well as riding as a team demonstrates our love of cycling. In the 2011 spring collegiate road season, we sent two riders to collegiate nationals and saw great results and several victories among our newer riders. This year we organized a team ride every Sunday that ended at a pancake house. Fall 2011 we plan on adding two more group rides to our schedule on Tuesdays and Fridays.

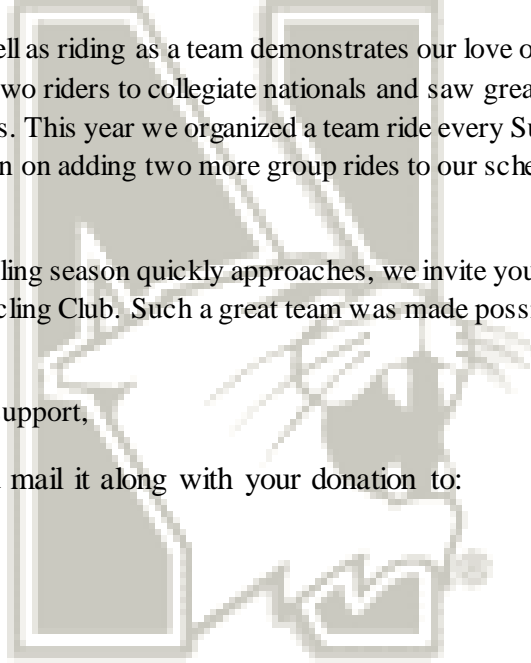

As the 2010-2011 collegiate cycling season quickly approaches, we invite you to become a supporter of the Northwestern University Cycling Club. Such a great team was made possible by our fantastic sponsors and supporters.
